Mrs. Floyd S. Corbin,
Hotel Plaza,
59th & Fifth Ave.,
New York City, N. Y.

My dear Cousin Aoelia:

Jessie and myself happened to be in Woolworths yesterday and came across a right nice beaded shopping bag that we thought perhaps you could use. I do not know whether it was made in Atlanta or Macon, but at any rate it seems to be pleasing to the eye and heavy in weight, and we thought perhaps you could find a place to use it on Fifth Avenue during one of your Christmas afternoon strolls.

We enjoyed your visit to the fullest extent, and trust that you and Evelyn will hurry back in the early Spring.

With sincere regards, and asking you to pardon a machine letter, as I am sending out over one hundred today, and with love and good wishes from all the family, I beg to remain

Yours most sincerely,
